THURSDAY, : : JUNE 8, 1876

WHILE we admit that a forty cents tax will not immediately pay the accrued and accruing interest, yet we think that if continued it will, on account of the increased wealth of the State and consequent increase of revenue arising therefrom, be sufficient to pay the whole debt, principal and interest, within the next twenty years. We will in future give the facts and the reasoning which bring us to this conclusion.

WE gave yesterday a table showing the entire taxation (State and local) upon every thousand dollars worth of property (true value). This was done to prove that taxation was less in Tennessee than in any State except Delaware and Pennsylvania, and to meet the often repeated assertion that Tennessee was bankrupt and unable to meet her obligations. The table which we published may be found on page 393, Resources of Tennessee, by J. B. Killebrew.

WE are aware that the impression is sought to be made abroad that the Democratic party of Tempessee, or at least a portion of it, favor either partial or total repudiation of the State debt. This is election of a Republican President. The men in Tennessee who favor repudiation, either total or partial, know thet this will be the effect, and, therefore, this policy is advocated by certain parties. Who are they? Are they Democrats or are they enemies of the Democratic party, calling themselves, if not Radicals, Independents? I. R. Hawkins, a former Republican member of congress, advocates a repudiation of the national and State debt. A. S. Colyar, who has been doing all he could against the Democratic party far the last four years, advocates a non-payment of the debt. We suppose, from his speeches, he is in favor of scaling the debt, which io partial repudiation. The Memphia Avalanche, which is one of the most dangerous opponents of the Democratic party, is in favor of reducing the rate of taxation, which means non-payment of the debt. The Independent ticket in this county in 1874, composed of Radicals and Independents, advocated a reduction of the State taxes, which was virtual repudiation. Even now a combinstion is about to be formed between the Radicals in this county and the advocates of the non-payment of the State debt. There may be some Democrats who will go with them, but the main body, so far as we have been able to learn, of those opposed to the payment of the State debt, are enemies of the Democratic party. We have no hesitation in saying that if the Democratic party in the August convention should favor repudiation of either the national or of the State debt, it would not only destroy all hopes of our success in the national contest, but would endanger success in the State elections. We must insist that the Democratic party shall not be held responsible for the acts of its most bitter, though secret, enemies, who are more dangerous than open and avowed foes. If the Republican party intend to carry out the platform they adopted at Nashville, and really oppose both national and State repudiation, then repudiation is dead, forever dead in Tennessee, and will be sunk so deep that the hand of resurrection will never reach it; but if, while they profess to be opposed to repudiation, they ally themselves with the repudiating Independents, then we know not what may be the result. Of this our friends at the north may rest assured, that the stain and odium of repudiation will never rest. upon the Democratic party of Tennessee, as a party, however individual members of that party may act. Let the glory or the shame of repudiation belong to the Independents, for they are its authors and its chief advocates. We must do the great body of Republicans the justice to say we do not believe they will act with the repudistors, but will leave them, as a leading Republican paper in the north says, to "wallow in their own mire."

Ir is sometimes said that those most active in advocating the payment of the State debt contribute very little to the State. Is this so? Who is a more earffeet advocate of State credit and more opposed to repudiation than Hon. John M. Lea, of Nashville, and who owns more property in Shelby and Davidson counties than he does, or pays his taxes more promptly? We will venture the assertion that he pays more taxes than all the open advocates of repudiation, whether on the stump or connected with the press, Hon. James E. Bailey also is a larger tax-payer than any of the men who are canvassing the State in opposition to his views, and neither of these gentlemen are now or ever was the owner of Tennessee bonds. But even if it were true that the men of small property, or of no property, were the most zealons defenders of the honor of the law school; 2d to those who propose to read privately; and 3d, to practitioners who have not had the advantage of systematic instruction. For circular apply (P. O. Cniversity of Va.) to JOHN B. MiNOR, jui 21 W. Prof. Com. and Stat. Law. zealons defenders of the honor of the FOUNTAIN SPRING HOUSE, State what would be wrong in that? A Tennessean who has but little property Tennessean who has but little property and who pays but little tax, is as much interested in maintaining the character and defending the honor of the State as John M. Lea, James E. Bailey, or any other man who may own blocks of buildings in a city or thousands of acres of land in the country. The honor of the MATTHEW LAFLIN, Proprietor. July MATTHEW LAFLIN, Proprietor.

State is as dear to the poor man and to his children as it is to the rich, and he should not be willing to sacrifice it to see the man of thousands of acres of land protected in his refusal to pay ressonable taxes, either to pay the debt which the State justly owes, or in some instances, to pay even the expenses of the State government. In almost every instance the large deliaquent tax-payers men often refuse to pay their laxes when they have the money, because they think they can make better use of the money otherwise, and because by refusing to pay they hope to get clear, by some means or other, of paying at all. As a general rule the men of small property pay their taxes much more promptly, and are much more opposed to repudiation than delinquent tax-payers, who are men of large possessions. We are no advocates of high taxes, but only wish to see the honor of the State preserved, and will only advocate such a rate of taxation as will secure that result.

They need no recommendation, since they have so fully established their e ficiency through the thousands who have been brought from death's door to renewed health by the use of their wonderful medicinal waters. Since last summer the Chalybeate Spring, which was opened last year, has been thoroughly analyzed by Professor M. B. Harden, of the V. M.
